William Borwell, a plasterer by trade, while doing a job of white-coating overhead for Charles Snyder, about ten days ago, had the misfortune to have a large chunk of the white-coating fall in his right eye, and so badly injuring it that fears are entertained that he may lose the sight of the member.

"Two more dishes of cream," To the waiter he cried, His eyes staring wild; His mouth open wide; "I love her most madly, To marriage I'm bent, And I'll satisfy her appetite If it takes my last cent."

President Cleveland has approved the bill providing for the study of the nature of alcoholic drinks and narcotics and their effects, in the public schools in the District of Columbia and Territories. That's the way to solve the liquor question, and it should be introduced in the schools of this State, says an exchange.

"Can you tell me what kind of weather we may expect next month?" wrote a farmer to the editor of his county paper. The editor replied: "It is my belief that the weather next month will be very much like your subscription bill." The farmer wondered for an hour what the editor was driving at, when he happened to think of the word "unsettled." He sent a postal note.

We are frequently told by our business men that those who do their trading away from home, mistake some time to purchase sufficiently and call upon our home merchants to duplicate, which is done satisfactorily, and when they come to pay the bill are astonished at the difference in the cost per yard, per pair or per dozen, which is always in favor of home. When, oh, when will our people ever learn to trade at home and receive an honest count, and stop this nonsense of trading away from home and getting worsted every time. Let our merchants patronize our groceries, and our groceries our merchants, thus setting an example for a unity in trade which will both be wholesome and increase our yearly profits. Try it.

Considerable complaint is being made concerning petty thieving, which is practiced to quite an extent at the different cemeteries. These parties pilfer from the graves flowers, shrubs, vases, and other articles left upon the graves as mementoes of the dead, contrary to law and decency. Believing that they do not understand that there is a severe penalty against the practice, we subjoin the following section from the Revised Statutes of Ohio for their benefit:

Sec. 7076. Whoever wilfully injures or removes any tomb, monument, grave-stone, or other structure erected to perpetuate the memory of any deceased person, or any fence, railing, or other work in or around any cemetery or burial place, or any tree, shrub, or plant therein, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both. [46 v. 97, § 8, 51 v. 167, § 7 v. 144, § 18.]

Lee Drummond took a similar ride to Don Quixote's ride into the wind mill, last Friday, with the exception that Lee rode into a horse rack. He had hitched up quite a lively horse to a dandy wagon without holdbacks, and when the wagon went over the railroad it ran on the animal's heels. The horse ran but a short distance until it ran directly astride of a horse rack. The horse started down a street as soon as it found itself freed, dragging Mr. Drummond by one foot, he having gotten his feet entangled in the lines. He saw his precarious condition, and by a vigorous kicking, succeeded in getting his boot off, which alone, more than likely saved his life. He escaped with a few bruises. The horse was slightly hurt also.—Deshler Flag.

Birthday Anniversary. Mr. EORROR—June 5th was a stirring time for a good many of the people of this township. About 3 o'clock p. m., the "public roads were lined with buggies, wagons, etc., each respective vehicle filled with human beings, strawberry short-cake and chicken, all enroute for the residence of Mrs. William Watson—a surprise party. What hosts of friends gathered from the remotest parts of Harrison. How nice to meet on such occasions and talk with friends and have a jolly good time. At 5 o'clock the gong sounded, the order was: the older men seek their ladies and march to the banquet; the writer of this had some trouble in securing a partner, but perseverance conquered, and here we are at the table. What a table, piled high with good things, in fact we ate as we often had eaten before, then gave room for the hungry souls that thronged around this "feast board" until some two hundred hungry persons were filled to satisfaction, then the young people gathered around the organ and we listened to their merry songs. Last-gathering on the green for presentation of presents, which was done by Rev. Matthews, of Grand Rapids, consisting of, 1st, Hanging Lamp, black dress, two counter pins, set of dishes and many other presents, yes I forgot the broom.

The reply from Mrs. Watson, thanking the kind friends and assuring them that this day would long be remembered, was a tribute to her worth.

Then singing "O think of a Home Over There," closed the ceremonies and the friends departed to their homes. D. V. H.
